

GET INVOLVED IN ANTI-BULLYING WEEK 2017_

Anti-Bullying Week is a great opportunity as a school to talk about bullying and review your practices. But it is vital students are also involved and heard throughout your Anti-Bullying Week activities. Consulting with young people, The Anti-Bullying Alliance and The Diana Award have come up with 10 tips on how you can engage young people:

CREATE A STUDENT ADVISORY GROUP_

Develop activities for Anti-Bullying Week with a diverse group of students to get everyone involved.

SELECT A SCHOOL SLOGAN_

Use the official Anti-Bullying Week slogan or come up with one of your own.

SOCIAL MEDIA TAKEOVER_

Encourage students to take over the school's Social Media for the day to send out anti-bullying messages.

TAKE PHOTO PLEDGES_

Create a space where students can take photos with their pledges to treat each other with respect.

SHARE THE KNOWLEDGE_

Encourage older students to share their anti-bullying times in assemblies or short lessons.

CREATE A POSITIVE MESSAGE_

Using a wall in the school, encourage other students to spread positive messages or drawings.

REVIEW YOUR ANTI- BULLYING POLICY_

Share your anti-bullying policy with other students and make positive changes to the policy.

LEAD A BALLOON LAUNCH_

Make a statement by publicly sharing positive messages through a balloon launch.

ORGANISE A FUNDRAISING EVENT_

Hold a creative fundraising event for your favourite anti-bullying charity or school event.

REVIEW YOUR SCHOOL ETHOS_

Create or review your school ethos on how all students and staff treat each other.

We'd love to see what you do, so please share with us your activity via social media or email. To find out more about The Diana Award Anti-Bullying Campaign go to www.antibullyingpro.com.
